

ESTHER CHILTON

Esther has been a writing tutor for The Writers Bureau distance learning college for the past sixteen years.

As well as winning several writing competitions herself, she has been a judge of several writing competitions, including flash fiction, as well as the role of head judge for Writers' Forum magazine's monthly short story competition. Esther regularly has articles and short stories published in a variety of newspapers and magazines in the UK and abroad, ranging from The Guardian, to The People's Friend, to Writing Magazine. She runs her own copyediting business and loves helping others to achieve their writing dreams.
